MAGNETS BY THE BAGFUL

Fun, educational, touch-and-feel magnets you can sell in your store "by the bagful." Easy triple mark-up.

These powerful magnets are made of iron ore and have been shaped into stones. Kids love to play with magnets. They can be thrown in the air close to each other to make noise, or use them to perform magic tricks. See how close the magnets can get without slamming together or arrange them into an infinite number of shapes including animals, jewelry, buildings or whatever you can imagine. All prices to fill a bag or crate box are for the fill only and do not include the cost of the bag or crate box.

Glow IN THE DARK Stones®

by the Bagful

Glow Stones® are phosphorescent rocks that, after being exposed to light for a short period of time, will glow in the dark! Pigments in Glow Stones® absorb photons in natural or artificial light. Absorbed photons cause electrons in Glow Stones® to become excited and raised to a higher energy level, emitting light as a result. As the photons are released, the electrons slow back down to a stable energy level, and Glow Stones® then stop glowing. After once again being exposed to light, they will phosphoresce in the dark all over again. Glow Stones® function as a kind of battery that stores light!

MAGNET STONES

Magnet Stones are permanent ferric magnets that have been isolated and polished to look like stones. Ferric magnets are made of elements that are composed of atoms with free electrons spinning in motion. The spinning electrons create forces that we cannot see, although we are able to see and test the results of these forces.

Iron is the most common element that has free electrons spinning in motion. The special law iron obeys is the periodic chart is for because the Latin word for iron is ferrum. That is why these kinds of magnets are called ferric magnets.

There are other elements having free spinning electrons those which produce magnetic forces are called ferromagnetic. These elements are iron, cobalt, nickel, gadolinium, dysprosium, and gadolinium. These elements are called ferromagnetic. Some elements do not have spinning free electrons and are not ferromagnetic, but when they are combined with each other, they become ferromagnetic. When combinations of non-ferromagnetic copper, manganese, tin, and aluminum are combined, they become ferromagnetic, which proves that the source of magnetic force is not because of the property of the element, but of the material's arrangement of electrons.

Over the past 100 years, scientists have learned which combinations of elements make the most powerful magnets. Figuring out the best combination of elements is just one part of making a permanent ferric magnet. After determining the ferromagnetic material to be used, the material must be magnetized.

Each free spinning electron in the atoms of a ferromagnetic material has a magnetic moment. A magnetic moment is an invisible force field around the electron that is constantly moving out one end and into the opposite end.

Brazil

South Brazil is rich in minerals found in its mountainous basalt rock formations. Eons ago, as 2400 degree Fahrenheit magma cooled, pockets of gas became trapped in the magma. The pockets of gas later became hollow cavities in the solid, newly formed basalt rock. These hollow cavities became filled with super-hot mineral-laden ground water which resulted in layers of agate and quartz crystals forming inside.

Miners in Brazil use hand tools to extract agate geodes from eroded mountain sides. For generations Brazilian miners have learned to cut the geodes in half, polish the cut surface, sides and some of the backs. The miners sell the worked geodes to collectors who enjoy their beauty and wonder.

Brazilian AGATE GEODES

Agate Geodes are found in the most southern state of Brazil, Rio Grande do Sul where millions of years ago ancient bubbling magma cooled and turned to basalt riddled with round shaped cavities. The cavities later became filled with super- heated water saturated with silicon, oxygen and other trace elements causing beautiful layers of agate to form on the inside of the cavities. As the cavities became filled with agate, crystals of quartz would grow inside the hollow area left inside the cavity.

Brazilian OCO GEODES

Oco or Ocho geodes are found in the Tres Pinheiros region of Brazil and usually have thin outer walls with beautiful miniature quartz crystals inside. Millions of years ago in this region there were lava flows that cooled and turned to basalt. Inside the basalt were ½" to 3" rounded cavities caused by trapped gas bubbles. The cavities then became filled with water saturated with silicon, oxygen and other trace elements. Beautiful Quartz Crystals began to grow inside the cavities forming Oco Geodes.

Cubic Pyrite Crystals

B Grade Quality

Iron pyrite, FeS_2 , is made up of the elements iron and sulfur. Its crystal structure is cubic; however, there are very few places in the world where near-perfect pyrite cubes form naturally underground with sharp edges and shining, mirror-finish sides. One of those rare locations is Navajun, a tiny village nestled in the Alcarama Mountains in northeastern Spain known for producing the world's most beautiful pyrite cubes.

These cubes are from the Navajun mine, meticulously extracted from the ground by local miners. Besides being cleaned, it has not been altered in any way. Its shape and sheen are completely natural.

These cubes in matrix are from the Navajun mine, meticulously extracted from the Earth still embedded in the host rock. The host rock is marl, a sedimentary rock consisting of clay and lime. Besides being cleaned, these pyrite cubes have not been altered in any way. Their shape and sheen are completely natural. Do not soak these specimens in water or the marl will soften and disintegrate.

Fossil Geodes From Morocco Already Cracked Open

CRACKED OPEN GEODES. Each geode is guaranteed to have beautiful, sparkling quartz crystals inside. We can guarantee it because we have already cracked them open and inspected to make sure. We then close them back up and use both a strong rubber band and a shrink band to hold the two halves together until the Cracked Open Geode is purchased. Rock collectors will not be able to see what the crystals look like inside the geode they pick until they buy it.

Shrink band keeps geode halves together until purchased.

Cracked Open Geodes, Fossil Cystoid Geodes, 1 1/2" to 2 1/2" on longest side. Guaranteed to be hollow with crystals of quartz in every geode. Each geode is different. Open the two halves to reveal how beautiful the crystals are in the geode you pick. Origin: Morocco.

Selenite

Selenite, which gets its name from the Greek word for the moon, is a mineral that has a unique and striking effect on the behavior of light that passes through it. Light travels through crystal fibers in selenite, so when selenite is placed on a light-up display, light travels through the mineral and shines out the top. Selenite shimmers in light, which makes the mineral look like it is glowing.

Selenite Lamps & Candles

Satin Spar Selenite lamps contain crystal fibers. Light from the bulb is transmitted the full length of the fibers, creating a glow on all sides, even below the lamp.

- Easy set-up - only 3 pieces and assembly requires only a screwdriver

Customer Testimonial

We have the sluice! We tested it twice and opened it for our first time to the public! It has been a HUGE hit! We introduced new dates and people are very excited! Thank you so much for checking in! We're very excited and so is the community! Come on out and do some mining! [The] setup, cleanup and maintenance instructions for the sluice are AMAZING! That is much appreciated as well!

Thanks for everything,
Elle Dare, Genuine Toy Co.

We do not sell shells from any endangered species, nor any illegally collected shells from national parks or local preserves, nor any which come from the immediate vicinity of such areas. Most mollusks are collected for food, not for the shells. Mollusks are also used for bait. The shells we sell originate from "leftovers" from food, specimens washed ashore or caught on the side when trawling. Our shells are always collected and exported under the auspices of the local authorities and in accordance with local, national and international laws.

Squire Boone Caverns & Village

Squire Boone Caverns & Village is a real place where visitors can explore the caverns first discovered by brothers Squire and Daniel Boone.

Tours of this natural wonder attraction lead explorers past thousands of dazzling, living formations, underground streams and rushing waterfalls.

A log cabin grist mill built by Squire Boone in 1804 is located near the cavern's entrance. Squire used the water pouring out of the caverns to power his mill. Located 33 miles west of Louisville, Kentucky and 12 miles south of Corydon, Indiana.

Open Memorial Day through Labor Day.
